'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Clear at last. Employes of the Richmond Health department are pointing with pride to the large map in the office which indicates the homes in the city under quarantine for some reason or another. Yesterday the last pin was taken from that map. For the first time in a long time there isn't a single case of disease in the city which requires quarantine. Also those homes which have had quarantine case and were required to be closed for a certain period after the end of the illness are also conspicuous for their absence. Let's hope those colored pins stay off that map from now until then.

"Bidding All Hooey," says Ed C. Ebsen, editor of the Pinole Weekly Times in introducing the following item to his readers.

Some one is getting snooty and we guess it's us. Who is doing all the bidding on the county printing and other supplies? We haven't heard of any "spirited contests" since the new county purchasing agent, Mr. J. H. Morrow, took the job vacated by Mr. Belshaw. The latter used to get bids on things occasionally (meaning when the spirit moved him), giving the "outside world" the impression that the county officers placed their orders at will, following the same old tune hummed in harmony with political likes and dislikes for lo, these many years. Can it be that Mr. Morrow is gradually slipping into the old way of doing things? Or is he glued tightly to certain firms or corporations and sees in them the only responsible ones to trust with "his" bids?

Speaking of printing for this county. We are under the impression that every item wanted by county officers should be placed in the hands of the purchasing agent, and he, in turn, ask for bids on the work from every printing office in this county, the twits and objections of cynical county officers notwithstanding. Such a procedure may cause a little "extra work" for our purchasing agent; but, excuse the affront, "that's what he's there for."

Of course we shouldn't say anything at all—give away trade secrets, etc. The public has no business at all knowing what is being done with its money—the public is supposed to be the dumb contributor. But, occasionally, it is well to say a word or two for the dumb ones.

Some years ago the county

FEAR FELT FOR FLIERS SAFETY

SANDBERG, Feb. 3.—UP — Cahrles A. Lindbergh brought his glider to a safe landing a few miles from here this afternoon, after it had dropped an aileron while in flight.

Neither Lindbergh not the motorless plane was hurt, but the world was given a shock for an hour while reports went far and wide that mishap had befallen the famous aviator.

Lindbergh had come yesterday to this litt'e resort 4200 feet up in the Tehachapi mountains which divide southern California from the interior valleys of the north.

He had spent this morning 'playing' as he descrbed it, with the glider owned by Hawley Bowlus of San Diego. This afternoon he started on a glider flight.

Plane Damaged

With Lindbergh at the controls of the glider was launched and sailed away into the air. Observers on the ground saw him bank the plane and just then an aileron dropped from one wing.

On the ground there was instant consternation for it appeared that Lindbergh did not realize that the aileron—which is used to control the plane's elevation and would seem a necessity in landing—was gone. Cars roared away into the direction which Lindbergh had taken, some occupying reporters, others first aid material, and one was a truck to haul back the expected wreckage.

But Lindbergh continued to sail on. Those who remained at the camp watched in amazement as he passed out of sight over the brow of a hill. Calls were sent to nearby resorts and all available aid was mobilized.

Perfect Landing

Finally a truck penetrated the rugged hills where Lindbergh had disappeared and men from it came upon him and his glider. He had brought it to a perfect landing on a bit of level ground, and the man who everyone had feared they might find injured in a crumpled plane, was standing beside the glider laughing and in great spirits.

In an hour the plane had been dismantled, loaded upon the truck and started back for Sandberg,

Can't Take Hint; Gets Jail Cell

It's in again, out again for John Williams, negro, whose home is under his hat.

Sometime ago, Williams was found sleeping in a packing case behind a local store. He was arrested and was sentenced to serve 10 days in the city jail by Police Judge C. A. Odell.

Yesterday Williams was released after serving seven days of his sentence. Police intimated to him that the world is wide and there are many places to go and many things to be seen. And, besides that, the climate of Richmond isn't too healthy for him, they said.

But, police say, Williams refused to take the hint.

As a result, Williams was again arrested in a local store yesterday afternoon and again faces a charge of vagrancy. He will appear before Police Judge C. A. Odell this morning.

WHARF FIRE PERILS TWO LARGE SHIPS

SEATTLE, Feb. 3—(U.P.)—A roaring fire that damaged a pier along Seattle's waterfront and threatened two large vessels was put under control late today.

The fire started aboard the Richmond company oil tanker, and ate through oil-soaked timbers of Pier 40, one of the largest in the world.

H. Roy Berkeley, a crane engineer, was injured seriously while fighting the inferno of flames that belched from the great pier.

The President Pierce, round the world liner of the Dollar line and the freighter Montauk, which were tied up at a pier adjoining Pier 40, were moved to a point of safety after flames threatened them.

Quick work of the crew of the tanker Kerkoskee, where the fire started, was believed to have prevented a terrific explosion of gasoline aboard the craft. The tanker was towed into midstream shortly after the fire started.

All available apparatus was called to fight the flames. Police from Ballard were sent to the scene to preserve order.

No estimate of the damage was made tonight. It was estimated, however, that the loss would mount high.

AID DEMANDED BY FILIPINOS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3—(U.P.)—Controversies between Filipinos and white laborers in California had subsided to the stage of resolutions tonight.

The latest resolutions were passed by the Philippine Civic league here.

They charged that the Filipinos, as a people, have no right under their present government to protect their own nationals from violence and abuse.

"Violent mobs in various parts of the state of California have mercilessly attacked, assaulted and even murdered young Filipino boys who were not violating the laws of the state of California, but only living in accordance with those laws," an introduction to the resolution said.

"Therefore, we urge the officials of California to establish full protection for members of the Filipino race living in California from violent assaults."

Prosecution of the white men involved was also requested, and the United States was urged to "keep good faith with the people of the Filipino race."

There had not been any rioting for several days and authorities believed their careful watch would prevent renewal of open fighting.

GIRL CASHIER STRUCK BY THUG

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3—Invading the Children's Hospital here today, four daylight bandits held 25 employes at bay with guns, struck down a woman employe, seized a $3300 cash payroll and escaped in a fast roadster.

The robbers operated so quickly and with such provision that only meager descriptions of them were obtained and detectives had obtained no trace of the bandits late tonight.

The four men, driving in a roadster, swung into the truckage entrance of the hospital at 3700 California street at 4:15 p. m. The driver parked the car opposite the entrance to the storeroom where all supplies are received. He remained in the car with a companion, while the other two, with guns drawn, walked into the basement corridor.

Employes Held

In the hallway, 25 employes were lined up, filing past a window counter where they were receiving their pay. Back of the counter was Miss Margaret Leonard, 27, hospital statistician. The pay of each employe was placed in an envelope and the envelopes were in a tin cash box at Miss Leonard's side.

The two bandits ran to the head of the line and while one herded the panic stricken employes with his gun, the second reached thru the window, struck down Miss Leonard a vicious blow on the arm with his fist.

"Get out of here and keep quiet," he ordered, menacing her with his pistol.

Grabbing the cash box, he slammed the cover shut and ran to the car where he leaped to the rumble seat.

No Clues

The second man waited until his accomplice was in the car before leaving. He dashed down the hallway, leaped into the running board of the car which was gathering speend out of the alley. Witnesses said that the car turned north on Cherry street, heading toward the beach.

Hospital officials declare that the robbery was done by men who were familiar with the routine and knew that the kitchen elp hwas paid off in cash semi-monthly on Monday afternoon. All other employes are paid by check.

GASOLINE PUMP HELD ILLEGAL

The city council was informed by City Manager J. A. McVittie last night that the Dias gasoline pump at the corner of Second and Macdonald avenue was in violation of a city ordinance.

When the petition was granted last September, the fire limit ordinance was overlooked.

Both Mayor A. L. Paulsen and Councilman A. B. Hinkley said that if the council had made a mistake they should stand by it, and not put Dias to additional expense.

The matter was temporarily disposed of when Councilman George Imbach made a motion that the city manager and fire chief investigate and report back next week.

MY ISLE IN INNISFREE

I will arise and go now to lean New England pastures
Outcropping granite, prickly with juniper, patched in brown grasses snow-feathered,
To white birches rising from shallow black ice-filmed pools,
To beech and oak and alder, writing "WINTER" with bare brown twigs,
To a white road, climbing into blue sky
Pale and cold and a promise of still more snow,
To pointed firs, to wide-armed pines
Tenderly holding drifts of incredible whiteness,
To a tall austere poplar, sentinel post for a lone black crow,
To a frozen pond and a rutted path and a land that has never yielded.
That lifts and thrusts and knots itself into hills and valleys,
A land and a people gnarly, ice-locked, uncompromising—
But never, oh, never bland and lush and monotonous.
Never, oh, never a flat, comprehensible plain—or face:
Some surprise below the pitch of the hill,
Some sardonic thought behind the slow cool speech,
Something even Fate could not expect—New England knows not fatalism—
Some twist of the road, some stubborn wall, some wind-threshed unconquerable tree—and soul.
For, oh, I am sick of plumpness and of patterns—
I want the bones of beauty's understatement
And the enigmatic particularity of the individual who neither compromises nor conforms—
I want New England's winter!

PINCH-HITTING FOR PARENTS

THE five-day week and the seven-hour day are being advocated by many workers and even adopted by some—but how often do you hear of any suggestion for cutting down the work-schedule of Mother?

The electric dish-washer, the vacuum cleaner and many another mechanical device are making life easier for the housewife—but doesn't the business of bringing up babies seem to become more complicated and confining with the very progress of science and invention?

What is to be done? Out of a spirit of friendliest appreciation, this woman's column has given periodic cheers for the woman with one of the world's hardest and most important jobs—the mother of one or more small children who is taking all the care of them. But to-day we can print a constructive suggestion for helping her, the simple, sensible and practical scheme put forward by Mrs. Esther L. Schwartz. She herself is the mother of two charming youngsters, and her book of verses written around them, entitled "Parents Prefer Babies," will appear shortly. Meanwhile, here is her plan, which ought to interest those who are parents and those who are not:

"Not all of us are able to render any outstanding service to humanity, to give away libraries, endow colleges, build hospitals," she writes. "But there is a simple little way of giving service that lies at hand with most of us, a service for which payment cannot be made, and which, like virtue, is its own reward.

"I HAVE in mind the young mothers who, until their children are old enough to be left alone in the evenings, are virtually prisoners. New York is full of these mothers. The more conscientious and faithful they are, the longer is their term of imprisonment. Lack of funds prevents them from ever hiring any one to stay for an occasional evening with the children. And so, almost from the moment the first child is born until the last one is ready for school, no one of them ever knows what it is to be able to go out in the evening with her husband. He is able to go alone, and she is able to go alone, but the rich treat of going together is not for them.

"It is not impossible that a situation like this has something to do with married unrest. Husband and wife, going out alone or in company other than each other at night, may unwittingly get into mischief. After all, just because a girl has a baby or two, she needn't lose all desire for normal good times.

"We see these young mothers everywhere. All day long they are busy with the babies, and when evening comes, for their occasional recreation, there is no prospect other than that of going out alone, or with some woman friend, or of getting into mischief. What a treat it would be to be able to look forward to even one evening a month, when such a young mother and her husband would be able to go out together for an evening! How wonderful it would seem!

"In justice to most young couples it must be admitted that, where there is nobody to stay with the children, both husband and wife stay at home. But when this goes on month after month, year after year, it becomes deadly monotony.

"HERE is where you come in. If you're a single sister, give up one date a month, so that the little mother can have an evening out with her husband. If you're a bachelor, spending an evening with the children of friends you know may be a liberal education. If you're one of a childless married couple, here's a chance to fill in a tiresome evening and do good at the same time.

"Children are trained nowadays to go to bed early, so that the evening you give up will not be much of a sacrifice, anyhow. You'll be free to read or rest, or, if you're a woman, to mend or sew.

"When I was single, before I had a chance to realize how very marvelous was this sort of service, I used to stay with the baby of friends so that they might go to the opera once a month. They sat near the roof, but it meant so much to them! To-day the woman is a widow, but she has never forgotten those isolated evenings when, in spite of the baby, she and her husband were able to go out together.

"Think over your friends and relatives and try it some night!"

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Desserts that are easy to look upon and easier to eat please us immeasurably at the end of a perfect dinner. And a moulded sweet or a frozen one charms the beholder as well as the consumer.

The Bavarian cream family comes to mind when moulded special desserts are mentioned. Almost every woman has her own recipe for Bavarian cream and yet it differs little from that of her neighbor. Pineapple, peach, strawberry, cherry, blackberry, orange, lemon are only a few of the fruit possibilities. Chocolate, maple, butterscotch and vanilla suggest other variations.

NANCY DORRIS

With strawberries in market, strawberry Bavarian cream made with the fresh berries becomes a company or Sunday supper dessert of parts. A pint of berries is all that will be required for the

STRAWBERRY BAVARIAN CREAM

One tablespoon gelatin
One-fourth cup cold water
One cup strawberry pulp and juice
Two tablespoons lemon juice
Three-fourths cup sugar
One cup heavy cream
Whole berries for garnishment
Moulding time, two to three hours.
Servings, six

The lemon juice gives life to the strawberry mixture, and the amount may be decreased to suit the taste. The sugar likewise may be varied to please. The cream may be increased to 1½ cups.

Put the gelatin in a bowl and add the cold water; let soften five minutes; then set over hot water to dissolve the gelatin. Mash enough previously washed and stemmed strawberries to measure a cup, juice and pulp together; turn into a saucepan with the sugar and lemon juice. Just heat through and take from the fire and combine with the dissolved gelatin.

Stir the mixture well and set aside to cool. Then place in the refrigerator to thicken.

When the strawberry mixture seems thick, fold in the stiffly-beaten cream lightly; pour into individual moulds or trays of the mechanical refrigerator and place in the refrigerator for two hours.

At serving time unmould in chilled dessert glasses and garnish with whole ripe strawberries. Plain wafers or delicate sponge cakelets are nice with the cream. As the dessert is rich, small helpings should follow the heavy dinner, although a light dinner usually precedes the cream. Coffee is, of course, a necessity.

Modernizing the Home—

Considering Comfort Usually Proves a Safe Guide to Good Arrangement

By Alma Zaiss

Dear Madam.

I wonder if you could help me on the following points. If that be asking too much, I would appreciate your opinion on the curtains especially. I have a front room and living room in which I have furniture arranged as shown in diagram.

1. What do you think of theatrical gauze, with or without drapes, for front room windows? Would you suggest anything other than theatrical gauze—preferably something less expensive? Would prefer straight across curtains which would permit sufficient light. What would be a suitable color? Enclosing sample of wall paper.

2. What kind of curtains could be used for bay windows? In view of growing plants, they have to be plain and easily laundered.

3. I have no really comfortable chairs and am thinking of purchasing two or three upholstered chairs. Could you suggest type and color of coverings?

4. With these additional chairs in mind and possibly another floor lamp in the living room, would you please suggest a suitable arrangement of furniture in these two rooms.

5. Have just had new hardwood floors laid. What size and color of rugs would add to the attractiveness of these rooms?

6. What kind of lighting fixtures should I purchase for the centre light in each of these rooms?

MRS. H. O. G.

Rearranging the "Back-Handed" Room

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

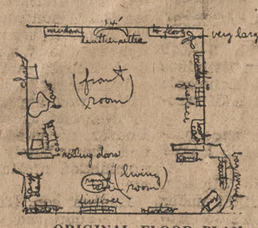

SEVERAL weeks ago we promised to publish a number of roughly drawn floor plans for the encouragement of those who hesitate to send in amateurish diagrams. For in order to give correct recommendations it is most important to know the size and general characteristics of the room. Mrs. G.'s plan is puzzling enough, since it is not drawn to scale, yet it proves a fair guide which enables us to plan a comfortable homelike arrangement.

The chief difficulty with the original plan is its lack of comfort and the unnatural placement of its furniture. Every important piece seems to have a back-handed location—to have been placed with no regard for the well being of the family or guests. The settee, parked between the two windows near the door, is as stilted as a bit of office furniture. The books have no companionable chair nearby and the hearth no fireside seat. And the same lack of comfort is present in the long living room.

Reference to the diagram of rearrangement will show a very congenial rearrangement of these two rooms—if our interpretation of the original floor plan is correct. The photograph illustrates the gracious lines of the grand piano in the position recommended. Mrs. G.'s room has an abundance of light; undoubtedly the windows to the left of the fireplace will give one seated at the keyboard a satisfactory amount of daylight, and a standing lamp in the corner will provide illumination at night.

If a few new pieces can be had, we suggest that a console and mirror would be effective between the two long windows, and there should be at least one comfortable chair in the room. This we have indicated at the left of the hearth with a small table beside it—and the dotted lines indicate two more chairs which may be added later.

A study of the diagram of rearrangement will show suggested additions and the new location of old pieces in the living room. This arrangement will provide a most homelike view from the front room and bring greater comfort to all. The round table in the window may hold books, magazines and a lamp. The curving bay windows will cast a good light on the desk in its new position. Additions consist of two very comfortable overstuffed chairs, a small table and cushions to make the couch seem inviting in its fireside corner.

ORIGINAL FLOOR PLAN

Taking up in detail Mrs. G's questions regarding floor covering, draperies and light fixtures, we would say that, considering the sample of the wall paper which shows a brown and rose tapestry pattern on a tan ground flecked with gold, the idea of sheer, simple curtains may be very good. Theatrical gauze comes in a very soft combination of rose and gold and is by all means the least expensive fabric to be found. We are nearing spring—and it is an ideal material for summer draperies.

For these windows it may be better to have the full length gauze hang very full over the entire window, looping it back softly at a low point to give the effect of one curtain at each window. Or, if preferred, the gauze may hang in straight simple folds across the windows. Mrs. G. should try both ways and adopt the treatment she likes better.

We would continue the same curtaining in the living room. If the draped treatment is used, this may be employed for the two windows at either side of the fireplace. In the bay the draped curtains may be used at the outer edges, and full straight curtains of the guaze used for glass curtains, which should extend only to the sill.

In the room illustrated, very beautiful hardwood floors are shown. If Mrs. G.'s new floors are of the parquet type—medium dark in colorn and finished with dull waxing—she may prefer to leave a substantial area uncarpeted and use here and there a lovely small rug which she already owns. But if the floors are a yellow-orange color and highly finished—as so often happens, or if new carpets must be bought, it would be better to use room-sized rugs in both rooms. We would recommend plain carpeting of a rich pinkish brown—the same color for both rooms.

Upholstering for the chairs in the front room should be of plain or self-patterned fabric or one of the new shaded materials, since so much design is used on the walls. The big chair could be covered in a dull shade of old gold in which there is some light brown and beige. There are several fabrics in which an indefinite leaf motif is developed in gold and brown tones, and this design would be in nice sympathy with the tapestry paper. In fact, the upholstering and accessories afford us the only opportunity to introduce the modern note without unduly emphasizing it in a room where the background is not in key. The side chair may be upholstered in a fabric shading from terra cotta to rose or coral, and the open arm chair and piano bench may introduce soft moss green in some ribbed or self-patterned fabric. It would be nice if the leather settee could have a cover of pale brown velveteen; if not, then give it a pair of old gold cushions of the same fabric used on the fireside chair.

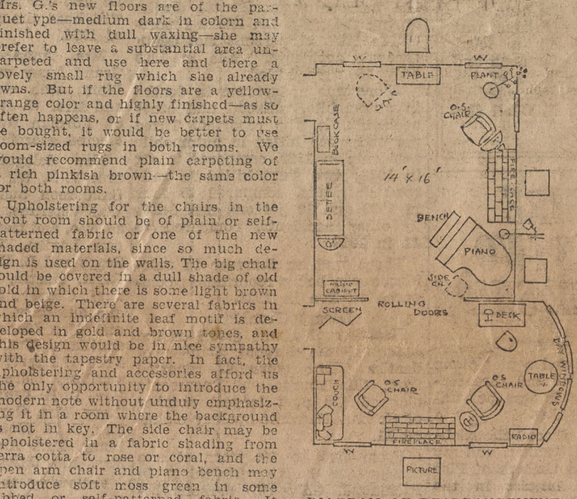

DIAGRAM OF REARRANGEMENT

In the living room the couch cover could be of soft beige or brown velveteen cushions in the brown and gold, with several in tones of green. The fireside chairs may be upholstered in the shaded rose fabric, and the seat of the desk chair could be in the moss green.

We hope the centre light fixtures for both rooms can be forgotten, and floor and table lamps used in their place, for they furnish much more flattering light and are better from a decorative standpoint. Shades for both should be very plain, preferably of skin or a soft honey color; or use stretched silk shades of rusty rose, toning to pale yellow. The various plants introduce plenty of green in both rooms and should make the scheme very cheerful.

This completes the plan for two very homelike rooms achieved in spite of odd architectural features and a somewhat characterless background. Without striving for effect, the arrangement has worked itself out quite naturally. It was necessary only to consult our ideas of comfort and the pieces practically disposed of themselves. And so it is in many problems of arrangement. That disposition of furniture which seems most companionable, which gives the best lighting for reading and writing, usually appears to best advantage in the room.

PIANOS ARE RARELY AT EASE WHEN PLACED FLAT AGAINST A LONG BLANK WALL. IN THE CORNER POSITION INDICATED THE INSTUMENT OCCUPIES LITTLE SPACE AND CREATES A FAVORABLE IMPRESSION FOR BOTH PLAYER AND AUDIENCE.

You and Your Child

The Imaginative Lie

"OH, Mummy, I saw a boy runned over," my five-year-old announced, as she bounced into the house. "Where?" I asked. And then gushed forth a harrowing tale of ambulances, policemen, crowds of people and all the rest. Somehow, the story didn't quite ring true. And as my daughter's histrionic powers had taken me in several times in the past, I asked quietly: "Are you making believe?" The little one started to say "no," but catching my eye, she laughingly said: "Yes, it's all a make believe story."

Should I have punished the child, telling her she had lied to me? I think not. I might, then, have stunted that precious gift of the imagination, which is budding so generously. Or, my disapproval might simply have taught my little one to keep her flights of fancy to herself or to take them to more appreciative audiences. I wouldn't want that. I want my child to feel that at all times she can freely bring her confidences, no matter what they are, to her mother.

What did I do? I simply laughed with her. But since then, I have been making a special point of labeling the stories I tell her saying, "This is a make believe story," or "Now I'm going to tell a really true tale." And my little one is beginning to follow my example. She nearly always labels her fanciful creations now, tacking on at the very end, "That's make believe, you know." Gradually, I feel confident she will learn to separate her flights of fancy from honest to goodness fact.

There are some little children who have such vivid imaginations that they are really unable to tell the difference between their creations of fancy and the real thing. And when they tell tales about dogs that talk and cats that fly, they actually believe they have heard and seen these phenomena. But even these children can learn in time to tell the difference between imagined things and real ones.

If a child uses his fabrications to avoid censure or punishment or to gain approval that is a totally different matter, and requires more thoughtful handling. But when a little one tells "whoppers" simply because his lively imagination is running away with him there is not the slightest cause for alarm. Rather let us rejoice that our youngster is endowed with a great gift, a vivid imagination, and let us gradually teach him to separate his imaginings from solid fact.

Oh, Go to Bed

"DAD, do you know why a cat's eyes shine in the dark?"

"Why, yes, it's because a membraneous layer between the retina and outer covering of the pupil reflects the light."

"Why does it reflect the light?"

"Because it throws the rays of light back like a mirror."

"How can it throw the rays of light back when it is dark?"

"There is always some light."

"Why can't we see the light in the dark?"

"Because our eyes are not like a cat's eyes. There is nothing in our eyes to catch and reflect these rays of light."

"Why isn't there anything in our eyes so we can see the light in the dark?"

"Oh, go to bed!"

Flemish Exhibition In New York

Flemish art circles are gratified to learn that the exhibition of Flemish "Primitivos," held in New York at the Kleinberger Galleries, turned into a real triumph. The exposition was got together from a number of private collections, and the catalog was composed by no less an authority than Dr. Max Friedlaender. "We must express a certain measure of surprise," remarks Vandaag (To-Day), a revue of Flemish art and literature, "that many such pious and to-meditation-leading works which were born in the tranquillity of Bruges, in cloisteral Louvain or the Antwerp of the sixteenth century have found their way to the roaring cities of the skyscraper, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, Detroit and Washington." Among the tableaux exhibited were twenty Van der Weydens, more than twenty of Memling, a Van Eyck, a Van der Goes, nine of Dirk Bouts, six of Petrus Christus, Benton, Matsys, Mostaert, Ysenbrant and the Masters of the Legends of St. Ursula, St. Lucia and St. Magdalena were also represented. John D. Rockefeller loaned "a portrait of a noblewoman" by Rogier Van der Weyden. The Van Eyck came from the collection of Julius Hass of Detroit. Jesse Strauss loaned his Madonna," Julius S. Bache his "Carthusian Monk," which originated under the influence of Van der Weyden. Martin Ryerson of Chicago, E. W. Edwards and many other distinguished Americans yet made possible that these precious treasures of the Flemish spirit were brought together in a quiet spot of the metropolis. "It gives Flemings a sense of pride," writes the critic Jozef Muls.

Goose Liver Paste

While the Parisians were feasting on goose liver paste around New Year's the farmers of the Perigord were busy preparing their pates. Hardly a goose is now to be seen in the valleys of the Dordogne and of the Isle, where in the summer past there were so many. All are gone; they were slaughtered about a month ago. But the livers, ranging from ones about the size of a man's fist to ones bigger than a derby hat, are now laid out on the tables where the putting up of the pates is going on. No Armour or Swift has turned up here yet to corner the market and get the goose liver industry on a high-powered basis. Three old women around one kitchen table with no machinery more elaborate than a big basin and the tin cans which are to be filled, suffice for the biggest dealer in the valley of the Isle. The tender-hearted may be consoled at knowing that the deliberate fattening (what is called the "gavage") lasts only a few weeks. Then the poor beast is kept in the dark and forcibly fed through a funnel. He is gorged until he can hardly walk. In the last few days of his life he is in a complete stupor. So far as we know there is little or no truth in the stories about supplementary refinements of cruelty, such as tormenting the goose in front of a fire, in order to make the liver burst while the bird is still alive.

Spectres

The land of France lies in the grip of winter. The streets in Paris are almost deserted. The famous fountain on the Place de la Concorde and the waterfalls in the Bois have been turned into fantastic monsters of ice. On the Grand Canal at Versailles people are skating. Heavy snowfalls are reported from the south. Even Morocco has suffered from hail storms and frost. The cold weather, however, is bringing something to the surface in Paris life that the Government is anxious to hide. Swarms of destitute people hover around churches and public buildings. Each afternoon a pathetic drama is enacted in front of the offices of the evening papers, where the first editions are snatched from the hands of the vendors by thousands of unemployed in hope of finding the ad that will give them a job.

Cigarettic Victory

How a cigaret led to the discovery of the famous Labyrinth of the Minotaur in Crete, where Theseus is said to have killed the man-eating monster and escaped through the maze of underground tunnels, is told by Dr. Adalbert Markovitis, the Austrian archaeologist. "One day," relates Dr. Markovitis, "when hopes of finding anything sensational had been given up, one of the workmen engaged in excavation suddenly noticed that the smoke of his cigaret was being drawn downward through a hole in the earth. He informed the leaders of the expedition, who carefully dug down and exposed to view the intricate wonders of the great labyrinth, whose secret had been lost since the dawn of history."

4.15—Fire drill by employes of Grant's Tomb.

4.35—Interesting things about famous folks. (a)—If Paul Revere attempted his ride to-night, he'd be arrested before he ever reached Lexington for going the wrong direction on a one-way street. (b)—One more attack of thrombosis and Knute Rockne's leg will be as famous as both of Clara Bow's. (c)—Benjamin Franklin saved $1,156 in barbers' bills by letting his hair grow in curls. (d)—Roger Babson puts on smoked glasses before he looks at future business prosperity. (e)—John Gilbert uses a medium oil on his hair during cold winter weather. (f)—Although Nero fiddled while Rome burned, he never took a violin lesson in his life. (g)—If you gave Peggy Joyce enough ropes, she could hang herself with pearls.

4.50—Prosperity talk. That thirteen-month year will mean 8 1-3 per cent. more work for instalment collectors.

5.10—Psychology lecture. The reason all men hate Rudy Vallee is because they think he's a cheer leader when he croons through a megaphone.

5.30—Climate talk. How I got a chill in Miami, Fla., every time a trolley curved around an ungreased car track.

5.45—Financial chat. How to clean up at poker by sneaking a stack of peppermint wafers among your white chips.

(f) A conscientious woodpecker can make 60 cents an hour boring wormholes in fresh-made antique furniture. (g) You can not carve initials on a mock turtle's back.

6.35—Thrift talk. Spit may be terrible on the end of a cigar, but it's just the thing to halt a run in a lady's stocking.

6.40—Safety chat. Chicagoans would get an even break with machine gun bandits if the citizens started wearing barbed wire coats.

7.00—Health hints. Two quarts of radiator alcohol in your stomach will knock you cold for the rest of the winter.

7.20—Biblical talk. Were there as many colors in Joseph's coat as there are in a United States marine's dress pants?

7.35—Statistics. Now that cigar coupons are abolished, it takes as long to save enough to get a grand piano as it did in the first place.

7.55—Address. They never had to cool the White House executive offices with ice when Calvin Coolidge was there.

8.15—Storm warning. If you want to get a load of new words, just wait till Gene Tunney starts telling about his operation.

NAVY PARLEY AWAITS U.S. MOVE

LONDON, Feb. 3.—UP—"What will the American's do?" became a byword tonight on the eve of another five hour session to debate methods of limiting fleets.

The British and French have submitted compromise proposals and the Japanese had a third ready but the United States delegation withheld any official comment on their own.

One newspaper, the Daily Telegraph, said the Americans were likely to seek restriction of submarine activities if France insisted on a large fleet of such craft.

The Daily Herald, laborite mouth piece, said the U. S. delegation would ask further explanation of the French scheme as a reprimand to Premier Andre Tardieu for claiming a victory in getting the proposal considered.

The British proposal submitted to the other delegations today suggested dividing all fleets into the following six classes of warships: capital ships, or battleships; aircraft carriers; cruisers with eight inch guns; cruisers with six guns and smaller armament; destroyers; submarines.

Later, according to the plan, any nation might scrap its six inch cruisers and convert them into destroyers. Submarines would be rigidly restricted as to total tonnage and there could be little or no transfer of battleship and eight inch cruiser tonnage to their classes of warships.

Prisoner In 'Bad Break' For Liberty

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—UP—The front door of the county jail here would have opened to Patrick Ryan, 37, Tuesday if he had not tried to escape today.

Ryan had served 29 days of a 30 day sentence for violation of federal prohibition laws.

He will be in a hospital longer than that, because in trying to evade the last 24 hours of his sentence he broke both ankles and wrists.

Ryan was to have been taken into federal court late today to swear a pauper's oath so that his 30 days in jail would substitute for a $500 fine. But he broke from a line of trusties and scaled a high wall of the third tier cells. He jumped and guards picked him up outside the building.

PLASTERER'S BOND

WHEAT HITS NEW LOW

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—UP—A four-cent drop late today carried the price of wheat to a new low for the season on the Chicago Board of Trade. For the third time within a week the low mark has been replaced by a lower one. The present level is 10 cents below the bottom price of a year ago.

Weak cables from foreign markets and news that Russia was renewing sales precipated heavy liquidation by longs while foreign buyers were frightened out of the market.

March wheat sold as low as $1.13 which is 50 cents lower than the high of the season. July lost 4 1-2 cents during the day and closed at $1.19 5-8. All prices were more than 7 cents lower than a week ago.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper figure, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

LLOYD'S IDEAL CLEAN FUN IN FILMS

Harold Lloyd has made such a phenomenal success because his comedies always have been clean fun that the kiddies as well as the grown folks can understand and enjoy. Now he has produced his first all-talking comedy "Welcome Danger" which is now playing at the Fox-California theater.

Casting all the traditions of the talking screen aside, Lloyd has brought to the screen a real feature length laugh comedy with just as much action packed in it as he ever put in his silent comedies, and that was plenty!

Harold Lloyd is the meek young botanist, whose chief ambition in life is to perfect a new flower. Fate intervenes, and he is whisked off to San Francisco to take the place his father had occupied in the community years before—that of the demon police officer whose very name was law. Here he has to match wits with the underground Chinatown, and in a series of hair-breadth escapes he produces some of the most laughable comedy ever brought to the screen ,sound or silent.

Work Starts On Deep Channel For Stockton

MARTINEZ, Feb. 3.—Work on the Stockton deep water channel project has been authorized, according to telegrams received by Sheriff R. R. Veale, and Otis Loveridge, from Congressman C. F. Curry.

The district engineer at Sacramento was instructed to begin work at a point near Antioch, the western extremity of the project, and work eastward.

A channel 26 feet deep and 100 feet wide, is called for by the project. Cost of the work will be defrayed by the City of Stockton, the State of California, and the federal government.

The Stockton channel at Antioch, will connect with dredging to be done between Bullshead Point and the confluence of the San Joaquin river and New York slough.

Curry's wire is as follows:

"Chief engineer is today authorizing district engineer at Sacramento, Major R. B. Matheson, to commence work on Stockton deep water project on portion of project below the junction of the San Joaquin river and New York slough."

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping." Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless; and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

He Welcomes It

WELCOME DANGER, is the picture which brings Harold Lloyd to the Fox-California theater here in his first talking role.

TITLE CONTEST IN CHURCH LEAGUE

The Community Methodists and the San Pablo Baptists will clash in the battle for the title of the B division of the Y. M. C. A. church league tonight at the "Y" gymnasium.

The First Christians will meet the Wesley Methodists in a practice contest at 8:15 o'clock. The championship contest will take place at 7:15 oclock.

There has been exceedingly close competition in the B division of the church league. For several weeks the Lutherans, Community Methodists and San Pablo Baptists were all tied for first place. However, the Lutherans were finally eliminated from the running and the race began between the San Pablans and the Community Methodists. And at last the race is coming to an end, with the result doubtful.

Although the Christian - Wesley Methodist A division contest has no significance as to the league result, a record turnout is expected to be present to see their heavyweight favorites in action for probably the last time this year.

Babe Ruth May Quit Baseball

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(U.P.)—Babe Ruth today threatened to quit baseball if the New York Yankees didn't pay him $85,000 for the coming season.

The home run king said he preferred to "stick with the Yankees" at that figure on a three year contract, but he didn't make the three year part of the matter positive, thereby leaving the door open for a compromise which may be expected shortly.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the club, to whom the Babe returned unsigned a two year contract calling for $75,000 a year refused to comment upon the defy. It is known, however, that the Colonel objects chiefly to signing Ruth for three years, and fans may rest assured that the Yankees and their tar gate attraction will get together before the 1930 playing season gets under way.

The Babe, in announcing his stand, made public his financial circumstances, which have interested baseball fans since he came into the limelight through his batting prowress.

"If Colonel Ruppert won't pay me $85,000," Ruth said in a statement to the United Press, "I will have to get along on my assured dividends of $25,000 in 1930, plus whatever I can pick up on the side.

"Without receiving five cents from the Yankees this year, I am assured of an income of $25,000 from established dividends and royalties. I have saved exactly $150,000 in less than three years, which pays me every three months.

"In addition, I receive royalties from baseballs, underwear, baseball gloves and equipment, radio talks and the like. So I won't exactly starve. In every case my fees and royalties have increased year after year. Why? Undoubtedly because my value has increased at the box office. Shouldn't the same increase in values hold good at the Yankee turnstiles?"

BARRIER NEED TO BE TOPIC AT DINNER

The dinner in honor of the joint legislative committee at the Hotel Carquinez Saturday evening will be an outstanding gathering of community leaders discussing the problems of vital interest to many counties, according to C. S. Renwick, chairman of the arrangements committee.

The dinner is to be held in honor of a joint legislative committee which is investigating California's water problem and has assigned next Saturday for a tour of Contra Costa county.

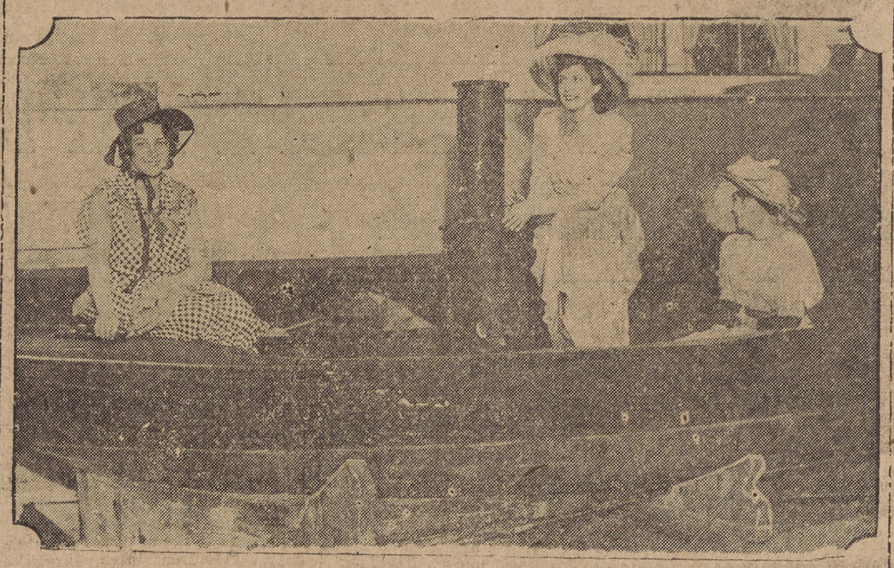

The program, as outlined by Renwick and C. W. Schedler of Pittsburg, president of the Salt Water Barrier association, included short talks by representatives from the principal communities of central and northern California. E. B. Bull will act as toastmaster introducing Mayor Al Paulsen for an address of welcome. The statement of the legislative committee will be presented by chairman Crittenden of that body, who will be followed by Schedler, giving an outline of the barrier as it effects industries in Contra Costa and other districts near the bay.

Other Speakers

Among the other talks will be D. D. Watson of Brentwood on "The Delta Situation"; R. H. Wight, president of Contra Costans, associated; Hugh H. Donovan, mayor of Pittsburg, speaking for Contra Costa cities; William J. Buchanan, chairman of the Contra Costa county Board of Supervisors on "Contra Costa County Needs"; Paul Wetmore on "Industrial Needs of Solano County"; Tom McCormack, "The County"; Hollis P. Thompson, secretary of the Berkeley chamber of commerce, "Berkeley Needs"; E. B. Field, president of the Oakland chamber of commerce, "Oakland Needs," and a speaker yet to be selected from San Francisco, to speak on the needs of that city.

The dinner will begin at 6:30 in the Hotel Carquinez and will be under the direction of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce with a heavy attendance of the membership of that body, it was said by P. M. Sanford, president. The gathering is one of a series of meetings called to promote the future construction of a salt water barrier in the Carquinez straits to protect the delta region from infiltration of salt and to provide a new supply of fresh water in Suisan bay. At this meeting, according to Schedler, the whole story of the importance of the barrier and what it means in protecting the millions of dollars invested in agriculture and industries will be set before the legislative committee for the first time. The Bay Barrier association, it was said, will seek to establish some methods of financing the barrier construction at the next meeting of the legislature.

TAFT QUITS AS CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES APPOINTED TO POSITION

gres Jr., at the same time announced he will resign as solicitor general of the United States. This position, which young Hughes has filled for the last few months, would have placed him in the position of arguing the government side of lawsuits before his own father. Hughes' resignation will be effective in a few days.

In Exciting Race

The elder Hughes, who made a notable record as governor of New York, served from 1910 to 1916 as an associate justice of the Supreme Court. He will be 68 in April. He resigned from the court on the day the Chicago Republican convention named him for the presidency. He received 254 electoral votes in the 1916 election as against 277 for Woodrow Wilson, who was reelected. The loss of California on second day returns cost Hughes the Presidency after nearly every one had conceded his victory.

Hughes was appointed Secretary of State by President Harding at the outset of his administration. He served under Harding and under Coolidge until March 4, 1925. Other notable works of Hughes include his chairmanship of the 1921 Washington arms conference, and his direction of the Supreme Court's recent hearings on the Great Lakes water diversion case. He is now a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice, the so-called "World Court" at the Hague.

Not Liberal

Hughes is not classified as a "liberal" who would be expected to align himself with the Holmes-Brandeis "bloc" of the court, although time alone can decide whether he will be as vigorous a member of the conservative element of the court as Taft was. His nomination was referred immediately today to the Senate judiciary committee on which the western independent Republican leader, Senator George W. Norris, is the chairman.

Taft advised Hoover of his intention to resign three weeks ago, about the time the Chief Justice left for Asheville, N. C., to rest and recuperate from his illness. The president immediately took up the question with Hughes, who made several night visits to the president's study. They talked the situation over at length, and Hughes accepted. Hughes did not even aadvise his secretaries of the impending change.

Old Intimates

Hoover and Hughes are intimates of the early Harding cabinet days, and were regarded here as being, along with Mellon, "the strong men" of the Harding-Coolidge administration. There were no political discussions in connection with the appointment.

The departure of Taft, who is 72, closes the public life of the only man who has ever been both president and chief justice—the two most powerful positions in the country. In the wide variety and importance of activity, Taft's career is matched in American history only by that of Hughes.

Taft was president from 1909 to 1913. He was appointed chief justice by President Harding, to succeed Chief Justice White. He was sworn in June 30, 1921.

Known As 'Big Bill'

Taft was known to the whole world as "Big Bill" Taft during his famous White House days. His geniality and good humor was a byword. He weighed nearly 250 pounds, and the famous mustaches were seen in cartoons everywhere. Catapulted into the White House by his bosom friend and predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft's administration was marked by tariff and other troubles. He failed of reelection in 1912, carrying the electoral votes of only two states against Woodrow Wilson and Roosevelt, who ran on an independent "Bull Moose" progressive platform.

On the supreme court Taft was more in his element. Lawyers credit him with a complete reorganization of the court's work, which has speeded up its action by months. He put through a policy of expediting criminal cases to prevent convicted men dodging prison through filing of an appeal. Despite some opposition of old timers on the court who had opposed projects for a separate supreme court building, preferring to be in touch with the legislative branch, Taft supported the plan for a monumental building. Congress has just authorized and appropriated for a $10,000,000 structure to carry out his dream.

Roosevelt Aid

In his earlier days, Taft was the strong right arm of Roosevelt's territorial expansion policies. He was the peace-making colonial governor of the Philippines. It was his peaceful treatment of the rebelling Filipinos which caused American soldiers in the Islands to chant of the native, "he may be a brother of William H. Taft, but he ain't no brother to me."

He was sent to Panama, to Cuba, to Haiti, by Roosevelt, to quiet disturbing conditions. With genial words and sometimes supported by the force of American soldiers, he was successful. He served under Roosevelt as war secretary.

Now Taft is broken in health. During recent years he has had several severe attacks, his heart being involved in one instance.

Brother Dies

A month ago his brother died in the family home in Cincinnati, and the chief justice went to the Ohio city for the funeral. The trip, and the grief, were too much for him. He rested in Garfield hospital here for a week, then he left for Asheville, accompanied only by his wife. Tonight he was enroute back to his home.

Hughes was born in Glen Falls, N. Y., April 11, 1862. He attended Colgate, Brown and Columbia universities. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1884. He practiced law and lectured on it in New York for 30 years. He declined the Republican nomination for mayor of New York City in 1905. Two years later he was elected governor. His administration was marked by his investigation of insurance frauds. He was reelected, but resigned before the second term was up to accept the supreme court seat in 1910.

Taft's resignation brought expressions of regret from both Democrats and Republicans in Congress, and Hughes' appointment was greeted for the most part with enthusiasm. It is believed there will be little if any opposition to his confirmation by the Senate.

Humphrey Ave. Action Delayed By City Council

No action was taken by the city council last night on the protest of J. L. Muir to the proposed opening of Humphrey avenue.

City Manager J. A. McVittie stated that the matter would come up for protest before the supervisors on Feb. 17, and nothing could be done before that time.

Muir owns two lots in the Rheem avenue section. He had planned to build, and suddenly discovered there was no gas or water in the district. To get water to his lots the East Bay Municipal Utility district told him, it would cost him $1586.

His protest is based on the ground there is no use for improved streets, or street openings, if a person is practically prohibited from building on account of excessive costs for water and gas.

GARFINKLE CAGERS WIN CITY LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

WINNERS GET STRIBLEY AWARD

Garfinkle's sensational loop squad captured the Richmond City cage league cup by defeating the Mammy's Place champions of the B division 31 to 17 last night.

The cup was presented to Ernest Marcus, manager of the Garfinkle's five, by William Stribley, donor of the award.

Garfinkle's considerably strengthened their reputation as a formidable outfit by outclassing the lighter Mammy's Place boys. The B division champions held their own till the last quarter, when they captitulated to the irresistible attack of the Clothiers.

The scoreboard read 9 to 9 at the end of the first quarter. Garfinkle's crept into the lead of a 16 to 13 score by the end of the second quarter, and, by the beginning of the last period, were leading 26 to 14. Yet Mammy's athletes fought hard to maintain their chance of victory until the final whistle, and the city league ended in as fast a manner as it began Nov. 4.

Winners Good

Garfinkle's squad have undoubtedly established their superiority in the city league during the past season. They only suffered one defeat, which was administered by the Furrer aggregation.

Several weeks ago, it looked as if the Studebakers and Santa Fe would catch up with the league-leading Clothiers, but Garfinkle's held a comfortable lead until the league's conclusion.

It was then required to meet Mammy's Place, winner of the B division in the series of games concluded last night. Garfinkle's boys were victorious in the first game of the series by a score of 32 to 22. Last night's victory was even more decisive.

Haywards Win

And now the city league is over and the fans are starting to wonder who will be the titlist of next year's city league season.

The closest and fastest game on last night's card was played between the Oleum cagers and Frager's Men's Shop of Hayward. The Haywardites were victorious by a score of 27 to 24 after an extra period had been played. The score at the end of the fourth quarter was 19 to 19.

In the extra period, some curious shooting was perpetrated. Boyle of Hayward sank two long ones; Parker of Hayward sank a beauty; Anderson and Thomas of Oleum sank a bucket each in quick succession; Parker of Hayward gained another; and Marini of Oleum made a four shot. But that last rally of Hayward was fatal to Oleum.

Y. L. I. Wins

The Richmond Y. L. I. swamped the Union Oil Ethyl girls' squad 19 to 7. The local girls were easily superior to the Oleum five, and at no time was the Y. L. I. lead in danger.

Plenty of basketball attraction will be offerd to Richmond sport fans this week. The all-star team "the pick of the crop" of the city league will meet the Crockett quintet Wednesday night at Crockett. An all-star lightweight outfit chosen from the city league will also go to Crockett.

The All-stars will clash with the Martinez five at Martinez Thursday. A contest between the All-stars and the E. H. Hutton, stock and bond broker team of Oakland has been scheduled for Friday night at the Richmond Union high school gymnasium, but it is expected that the date of the battle will be changed to Saturday night

SKETCHES BY CARNERA AND INSTRUCTOR

Y CAGERS WIN CALIFORNIAD CONTESTS

Two Richmond cage teams have been eliminated from the Y. M. C. A. Californiad as the result of last night's game at the Y. M. C. A.

The 90 and 130 pound teams are eliminated while the 80 and 120 pounders, the Unlimited and the Young Men's Division teams are still in the running and have moved into the second group. Opponents have not been selected. However, it is believed that they will either meet the Oakland or San Jose teams.

Last night the unlimited cagers defeated the Berkeley unlimiteds by a score of 24 to 11 while the 130 pounders of Richmond lost to the Berkeley 130's by a score of 13 to 11.

Richmond took the lead early in the unlimited game and piled up point after point. Berkeley found it impossible to overcome this lead.

At half time the score stood 12 to 4 in favor of the Richmond squad.

Boschetti was high point man for the local unlimiteds, making eight points. Linstedt was second with seven points while Pimm had five points.

The local 120 pounders won their game from the Berkeley team by defaults. Only four of the Berkeley boys appeared at the local gymnasium.

The 130 pound contest was a fast, exciting conflict from start to finish. With only 15 seconds to play in the last quarter and the score standing 11 to 11, Marsh, Berkeley forward, shot a bucket that brought victory to his team.

Marsh was high point man for hi steam, making 10 points. Macdonald was high man for the locals with four points.

The lineups for the games:

130 Pound Contest

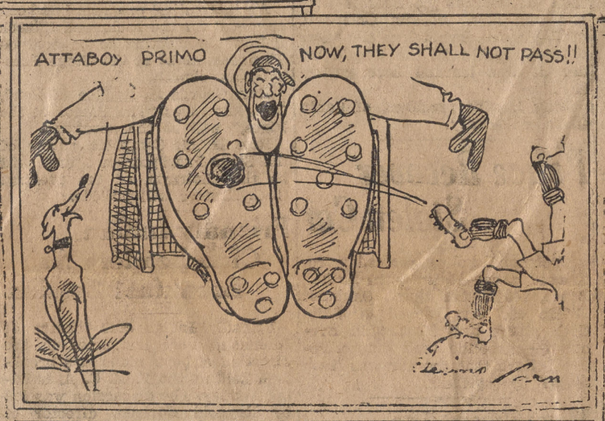

Richmond 11— Hillyer 2, Wakefield 3, forwards; Macdonald 4, center; Shinning 2, Reid 0, guards Miller and Robertson, subs.

Berkeley 13.—Marsh 10, Henrick forwards; Cole 1, Gorman, center; Cousins 2, Scott, guards.

Unlimited Game

Richmond 24— Boschetti 8, Linstedt 7, forwards; Baskett 4, center; Pimm 5, Drexel, guards; Johnson and Miller, subs.

Scouts Hike To Mt. Tamalpais

Seven Boy Scouts of Troop No. 2 of Richmond enjoyed a hike to Mount Tamalpais Sunday.

Bird study and test nassing were featured during the hike.

Boys making the trip were: Scoutmaster Joe Sassotha, Assistant Scoutmaster Jim Vanocini, Bill Faulkner, Dick Hooper, P. McQueen, Frank Hafner and Henry Hosking.

MOTORS NINE BEATS VISITORS

The San Leandro nine succumbed before the sensational hitting of the Thomas Motors Sunday on the First street lot, and the Motors walked off the field the proud possessors of a 15 to 6 victory.

Nothing could prevent the local sluggers from swatting the ball into every corner and even out of that First street diamond. During the first inning, "Kid" McCoy knocked the sphere over the fence bringing in Krasovich, Smaker and Borreani. Labetich gained two baggers, while Figueridо, Panella, Hurst and J. Labetich gained a double bagger each.

Whetzler started hurling for the locals, but weakened in the fifth inning and was replaced by Hurst. Hurst pitched a nice game until the last period, when Doyle Taylor took the mound for the Motors.

Box score:

Thomas Motors	15	20	2
San Leandro	6	10	4

Batteries—Whetzler, Hurst, Taylor, and Borreani; Xavier, Art Kardoza, and Chavez.

SAN PABLO NINE BEATS FLORISTS

The San Pablo diamond artists took the Hayashi Florists of Alameda gardners with an extra ington park in, Alameda with a score of 6 to 2.

The locals bewildered the Alamead gardeners with an extra heavy bombardment, while the Alamedans were unable to cross the home plate until the ninth inning. Ball chucked a neat game for the San Pablans, and hurled throughout the contest.

Both outfits showed a high standard of fielding, each aggregation staging three double plays.

Box score:

	R.	H.	E.
San Pablo	6	12	1
Hayashi Florists	2	5	3

Batteries: Ball and Gualdoni; Malloy and Zanic.

SOCCER CLUB IN SECOND PLACE

The Richmond Soccer club gained second place in the Eastbay Junior Soccer league by swamping the Ibericoes of Oakland 4 to 0 Sunday at San Pablo park. The local athletes now have only the Phoenix club between them and a tie for first place. The Phoenix boys attained the lead in the league Sunday by defeating the Scandinavians of Oakland. As a result of Richmond's victory over the Ibericoes, everything is looking rosy for the local soccerities just now, and a chance to play in the finals seems probable for the local eleven.

A spendid brand of footwork and passwork was disp'ayed by the Richmond boys Sunday. Louis Grice, outside right, scored two of the local counters on difficult shots, while the other two goals were due to clever kicking by Charley Chambers.

The locals had everything their own way during the first half, scoring all their four goals during that first period. The Ibericoe defense closed up in the last half, and the Oaklanders assumed the offensive, but in vain.

The Richmond Soccer club will be represented tomorrow night at a meeting in Oakland of the Eastbay Junior Soccer league by Johnny Freese and Nick Bracco. Who will be the next opponents of the local outfit will be decided at tonight's meeting.

BALL PLAYERS AT HIGH OPEN PRACTICE

The diamond cavorters at Richmond Union high school yesterday turned out for the first practice of the 1930 season.

Almost a dozen budding stars appeared for action in the first practice. Many more athletes are expected to appear on the high school diamond as the week progresses. Several of the best baseball men at Richmond high are still occupied with the basketball season, and it will probably be several weeks before they are able to begin baseball practice.

Ivan Hill, who has coached the Richmond Union high school teams throughout many seasons, will again direct the activities of the local high school nine. Hill has turned out several first-rate outfits during his career as head athletic coach at the high school, and this year's crop is expected to be no exception to the rule.

Several veterans turned out for practice last night on the high school lot. Louis Ball and John Rosano, between whom there was there was close rivalry for the position of catcher with the high school squad last year, again answered the roll call. John Babich, who has played with several well-known amateur aggregations, is out to compete for the high school mound. Emeric Baxter, first bagger, and Howard Dalton, shortstop, again turned out. Ray Juillerat, first, Heise, center fielder, Jack Stoddard, second base, George Cooper, pitcher, and Gutman, left fielder, who were all members of the high school second string last year, are out to make the No. 1 lineup this season.

LAURITZEN NEW PRESIDENT OF BOAT CLUB

George Lauritzen was elected commodore of the Richmond Outboard Motor association Sunday at a meeting called to arouse interest in outboard motor boating. Dr. Francis Kent was chosen as vice-commodore, C. E. Megenity, rear commodore, and R. B. Dougall, secretary-treasurer.

Great enthusiasm has accompanied the organization of the local boating club. Sixteen new members were taken into the association Sunday. The Berkeley Yacht and Motor club has expressed its interest in the organization of a Richmond outboard motor boating club, and several Berkeleyans have joined the local group of boating enthusiasts.

The local outboard motor fans have already started to formulate plans for races to be held during the spring and summer.

Many more boating enthusists are expected to attend the next meeting of the local club Sunday morning at the Richmond Navigation warehouse.

The members taken into the club Sunday were:

W. E. Horton, Hubert Miller, Gordon Perrault, C. E. Marshall, Dr. Francis Kent, R. B. Dougall, George Lauritzen, Rex K. Myers, W. H. Morrison, C. E. Megenity, A. Alameda, William Remell, Carl Zimmerman, G. R. Patnott, Harold Purviance and W. J. Thompson.

Liver, Gall Bladder and Stomach Trouble Relieved

2946 Morgan Ave.
Oakland, Cal.
Nov. 19, 1929.
THE FONG WAN HERB CO.
Dear Mr. Fong—I am writing this letter to express my gratitude for the splendid results and benefits I have received from the use of the Chinese Herbs prepared by you.
I had a complication of Liver, Gall-Bladder and Stomach Trouble with sharp, stabbing pains in the lower right side of my Abdomen. The region of the Liver was exceedingly sore and tender; so much so that even loose clothing became irritating and uncomfortable. My Stomach was also very sore to the touch and felt as if there were a lump the size of an egg in it. After meals, food which was very sour and burned the throat, was returned to the mouth. This condition steadily became worse over a period of a year. During this time, I was treated by two doctors without any appreciable results. Both decided that an operation was necessary.
By good fortune, I came into contact with a man whom you had treated successfully for an Ulcerated Stomach, and he strongly urged me to take your treatment. This I did.
Results were noticeable the very first week, and now, after six weeks, I am entirely free from the terrible stabbing pains and the soreness over my Liver. My digestion is good. The old feeling of lassitude has completely disappeared and I feel much brighter and more energetic than I have for years.
I am most happy to strongly recommend the herbs of the Fong Wan Herb Co. as prepared by you.
Wishing you unbounded success, and again thanking you for what you have done for me, I am
Very cordially yours,
CYRIL MAW.

"GENERAL CRACK"
BY
GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

As head of the victorious imperial army, General Crack, soldier of fortune, plans to make King Leopold emperor. Leopold, anxious to wed Princess Eleanora of Anhalt-Dessau, had, for reasons of state, to yield her in favor of Crack. One hour after marriage, Crack had to set off for the campaign, entrusting Eleanora to the old Duchess of Schönbuchel. Leopold, smarting at his defeat in love, and Crack's preeminence in arms, sets off incognito and meets Eleanora. The Duchess is outraged. Leopold and Eleanora arrange a tryst in her chamber that same night.

From the stables a clock struck and then another sounded from the recesses of the palace. They counted twelve strokes. And then, in what seemed to them five minutes' time, they counted one stroke. And Leopold said:

"Before we know we have even met together, it will be the dawn." And he added, in the first terror he had felt since he had entered her chamber: "Before the dawn I must be gone—before the light...."

"It is a long while yet to the dawn," she pleaded. "Winter's dawn comes late; and you must stay, for I am now frightened to be left alone!"

"I will take you away tomorrow," said Leopold, moving the hair from her brow and staring down into the face which he could scarcely see in this dim light. "Tomorrow I will take you away. Tonight is mine."

"Will you give me these?"

She began to weep, hidden upon his shoulder: weeping for she knew not what; weeping without let or hindrance, and yet without real pain or fear. The shadows were all merging into one monstrous shadow which engulfed them both.

They went together to the window, rapt in this lovers' whim to gaze upon the stars together, and she gently moved the curtain aside.

But Leopold thought of the sentries, and almost instantly pulled the dark and heavy folds closely again together.

Gabor, the Transylvanian, waited patiently, wrapped in his dark cloak, upon the balcony. He had been there ever since he had seen Leopold enter Eleanora's chamber. He waited with infinite calm, and infinite expectation; nor for one second did he relax his watchfulness. His eyes were ever on those windows, and they flickered at once to that one where there was a movement. He saw Leopold's white hand, even in this obscurity; he saw the blur of it on the curtain, and the faintest glow of interior firelight; and then he saw it withdrawn and the curtains pulled together.

He heard the cock crow, and stretched and yawned in his warm pelisse. He turned his thoughts deliberately to Prince Christian. What had Prince Christian been doing this most momentous night? He would make it his business to find out some day.

He pushed the window wider, and boldly entered the bed-chamber of the Princess Eleanora.

She slowly turned from her contemplation of her own face, and stared at him with an expression of utter, amazed horror; so stony and so dreadful that even he was faintly moved.

"Hush!" he said, fearing that when she recovered from her partial terror she would shriek. "Hush! There is nothing, Madame, to fear; I have kept watch outside your window, when I think you most needed watch and ward. Come! Will you not give me a reward for that—you or your cavalier?"

He leant forward, and his lean fingers picked up the two green diamonds, one of the Kurland regalia. Well he could remember them, and Herr Lippmann matching them one with another . . .

"Will you give me these?" he asked.

And she replied, in an expressionless voice:

"Take them away! I never want to see them again—take anything."

Gabor placed the gems in his pocket, and Eleanora, with a lunatic gesture, leaned forward and covered up the mirror, as if she could not endure that it should witness her disaster.

Eleanor could not move; and Gabor, gazing at her curiously, thought that she would faint, or even die, before his eyes.

Leopold was roused at last. He stood between the jerked-back bed curtains, half dressed, in the dull twilight. Immediately he recognized Gabor; immediately, also, he recognized the trap, the snare, the spy—catastrophe.

"You blackguard!" he murmured, through bleached lips; and then stood speechless before his fate.

Ferdinand Gabor was glib—serene.

"Monseigneur," he said, with a bow, "Count Hensdorff told me to watch over Your Majesty. I have kept good ward outside this lady's window; and now it is scarcely prudent that you should linger. May I advice you to go, Sire, immediately?"

Gabor needed no dismissal; he did not stay to hear the half-crazed reproaches and denunciations of Leopold. He bowed to both of them; nor was his smile lost on either.

Leopold stared at Eleanora, and could find nothing to say; and she put her face in her hands, and sat still before her dressing table, as Gabor had found her.

"Spying for his own ends, or really sent by Hensdorff?" Leopold wondered, in bitter distraction.

"Today," he stammered, dazed by this bitter awakening, "my love, today or tomorrow I will take you to Bosenberg."

But Eleanora did not speak or move.

"Unbolt the door," he whispered, quickly.

"Come for me soon!" she whispered, and hid her face again.

XVII

GABOR bowed suavely towards Hensdorff, and asked, with courtly suavity:

"Is it your pleasure, Monseigneur, to remain and hear what I have to say?"

Christian retained his bland composure, but he was slightly puzzled by the demeanor of Hensdorff; also by the sudden appearance of Gabor, a man who by him had been equally detested and forgotten. "Why," he asked himself, "should Hensdorff wish to remain to hear what the Transylvanian spy had to say?"

"I know what this man has come to say," Hensdorff remarked, "and I should wish to stay beside Your Highness while he tells his story."

Gabor shrugged and bowed. The presence of Hensdorff was a blot upon his hoarded triumph, yet not a large one.

"It is as Monseigneur pleases," he replied, with the insolence of a lackey.

Christian continued to look sharply from one man to another.

Hensdorff put his thin right hand before his old, clouded and unhappy eyes.

"Why," demanded Christian of Gabor, with increasing sternness, "do you not speak?"

And Gabor, with a grin of pride, as one who sees his foe falling before him, asked:

"Has Your Highness heard lately from Ottenheim?"

This name was to Christian perfumed and festooned with a thousand and delights, a thousand delicate graces; and he frowned to hear it upon such lips. Interrogating the insolent speaker with his clear, steady and angry eyes, he remained, however, tranquil; and, as Gabor did not immediately reply and seemed to gloat over the moment of suspense, Christian, with a gesture of dandyism that had become almost mechanical with him, flicked invisible dust from his brocaded cuff.

"Your Highness will not have heard from Colonel Pons for several days," remarked Gabor; and Christian asked:

"How do you know that I have not heard from Colonel Pons?"

Hensdorff, staring horribly through his fingers, saw Christian's impressive figure almost imperceptibly straighten as he spoke these words.

"Colonel Pons is dead," announced Gabor.

Hensdorff noticed that Christian had sufficient self-control not to repeat that tremendous word, which is nearly always echoed.

"How should Colonel Pons die?" he demanded.

"I can tell you that," replied Gabor, odiously. "He shot himself. He came down to the guardroom in the garrison a little later than usual one morning; he appeared to be as usual, but he had no orders to give and no questions to ask. He demanded wine and drank at a gulp. Then he said: 'Blast you to all eternity!' and went away. They found out he shot himself almost immediately, in the park."

LINDY PERILED BY BROKEN GLIDER

while Lindbergh assured everyone it could be placed in shape again tomorrow and said that on Wednesday he proposed to take it up on another flight.

Lindbergh was not engaged in an attempt at a record when the mishap occured. He explained he was only "playing" with the glider which he has found a delightful "toy" since his first experience with it a few weeks ago. The wind today was too uncertain and air currents too fickle, he explained, for any extensive gliding.

In No Danger

Experts expressed the belief that in the hands of a man as skillful as Lindbergh, the plane was at no time in actual danger of crashing, although a less talented flyer might have had difficulty.

Lindbergh had come here by automobile with Bowlus on Sunday. He had been in particularly fine spirits and was unusually genial with newspapermen, telling them freely of his plans and being careful to see they were kept advised of what he was doing.

Both Lindbergh and his wife became glider enthusiasts during their recent stay in southern California after a flight across the continent on an inspection tour of T. A. T. lines.

Lindbergh tried the new game two weeks ago at San Diego — the same Sunday a Maddux airliner fell near that city and killed 16 passengers.

Glider License

The colonel received a firstclass pilot's license after shifting the glider along the wind currents in a remarkable exhibition of flying that carried him, at one time, far out over the Pacific ocean.

Mrs. Lindbergh, the former Ann Morrow, was present and witnessed her husband's initiation to motorless flying, but she did not go up herself the first day. Less than a week later, however, after Lindbergh completed work in the investigation of the Maddux crash, the couple returned to San Diego and Mrs. Lindbergh flew the glider.

Mrs. Lindbergh was not with her husband today, nor was she here Sunday. She remained in Los Angeles at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Maddux. Maddux is president of the T. A. T. Maddux line.

Bowlus, the inventor of the craft is an old flying friend of Lindbergh. He is an expert in the designing and construction of all types of planes and much of the work on the Spirit of St. Louis, Lindbergh's famous New York to Paris plane, was credited to Bowlus, who worked in the San Diego factory where it was made.

delinquent tax list (that fat dish of political porridge) was let out to bids. This "liberal" step was such a blow to the printing fraternity that most of them went fluey, one craftsman bidding so low that he went into debt handling the job. Of course such bidding, for the sake of "baby's shoes" is not advisable.

Our old friend, Tax Collector Martin Joost, a lad who came from the country, grew up in public office, and made good in the thriving city of Martinez, looked upon this tax list the same as he does his job—as a heritage. Whether Martin felt sorry for the printer who lost money on the job or not we do not know. At any rate, to this day, the list was never put out to bid. At the fat county price Martin places it where he thinks it will do the most good. "Good" is a funny little word. But things political and otherwise can be figured out without very much explanation on the part of the writer. But, leaving all "jokes" aside, Martin is a good official—and why shouldn't he be? He's been at it since Ben Franklin first struck off a delinquent tax list proof, it seems, on his famous old Washington. And Martin's still smiling at 'em across the counter in the tax collector's office in Martinez.

There are other offices up there in the "home of the grand old men" that require considerable printing, but if bids were asked for the same, they were not noticeable to any great extent. Mr. Morrow, the purchasing agent for this county, is a keen business man and no doubt understands the duties of his office. Perhaps there are oversights and this and that, but he must not forget that the hight way to handle the people's money, in his position, is to get bids on all county work.

There were 1035 analyses of milk during the year and 86 analyses of ice cream. There were 1511 store inspections, 661 business house inspections, 1381 creamery inspections and 13,197 inspections of meats sold here.

Report Lauded

In closing his report, Dr. Blake declared, "During the year 1929, the health report of the health department of the City of Richmond, shows a consistently progressing growth in the population of our city, excelet aita aylnsrnnn of our city, excellent sanitary and living conditions and a steadying normalcy in the general excellent health of the populace in this city.

"Birth and death registrations for the last year, have almost maintained the same total as of 1928. This is most satisfying considering the yearly growth in the population of Richmond.

'In the extensive immunication of our school children, in the strict enforcement of our health, food, milk and meat standards and regulations and in the ready cooperation of those in the health department, further make the health report of the year, 1929, a most satisfactory one."

ON WITH THE DANCE
A True Story of the Younger Set
THE Friday evening dancing party was the week's high spot for the young folks of a certain small country club. A four-piece orchestra always supplied the rhythm until older members conceived the idea that mechanical music would serve the youngsters just as well—and cost less.
Accordingly, a music machine was installed. The plan worked once, but the next Friday the little band triumphantly returned to the job.
"What's wrong with your new music box?" a father asked. "Wouldn't you rather dance to Whiteman and Vallee records than to a tin-pan band?"
Junior shook his head:
"Mechanical music is fine at home but it hasn't the right kick for a dance."
What is true of dancing must be equally true of the theatre. Are YOU getting YOUR money's worth in the theatre?
